

XM Radio is in my opinion the best purchase I have made in quite some time. XM Radio provides the music and information that I desire, at the time I desire it. I never have to worry about loosing my signal (like I do with my local stations) while on the road. I am having a hard time understanding how the NAB can dictate whether or not I should have my XM Radio, and what should be played on it. It is really not any different than the satellite TV that I pay for every month. I choose to pay to have Direct TV, instead of my local cable services. At least with my XM Radio I still have the option of listening to regular radio stations, my Direct TV does not give me the option of viewing my local stations. I pay every month to have my XM Radio. It is my preference to pay for XM Radio services every month, and to not listen to my local stations. I respectfully urge you to reject NAB's petition 04-160! Perhaps next thing we know, the NAB will be protesting letting people buy CD's, saying that the popularity of them is hurting their business. It is my choice to purchase and listen to XM Radio, and I feel that they have no right at all to tell me otherwise. Perhaps the NAB should step back and take a look at what they need to improve on, and leave my XM Radio alone. This country is based upon many freedoms. One of which is the right to freedom of choice, and my choice is made, I choose my XM Radio for it's superior programming. I only hope you will make the right choice. Perhaps if you yourself tried XM Radio you would understand better why it should be left alone to continue as they are.
